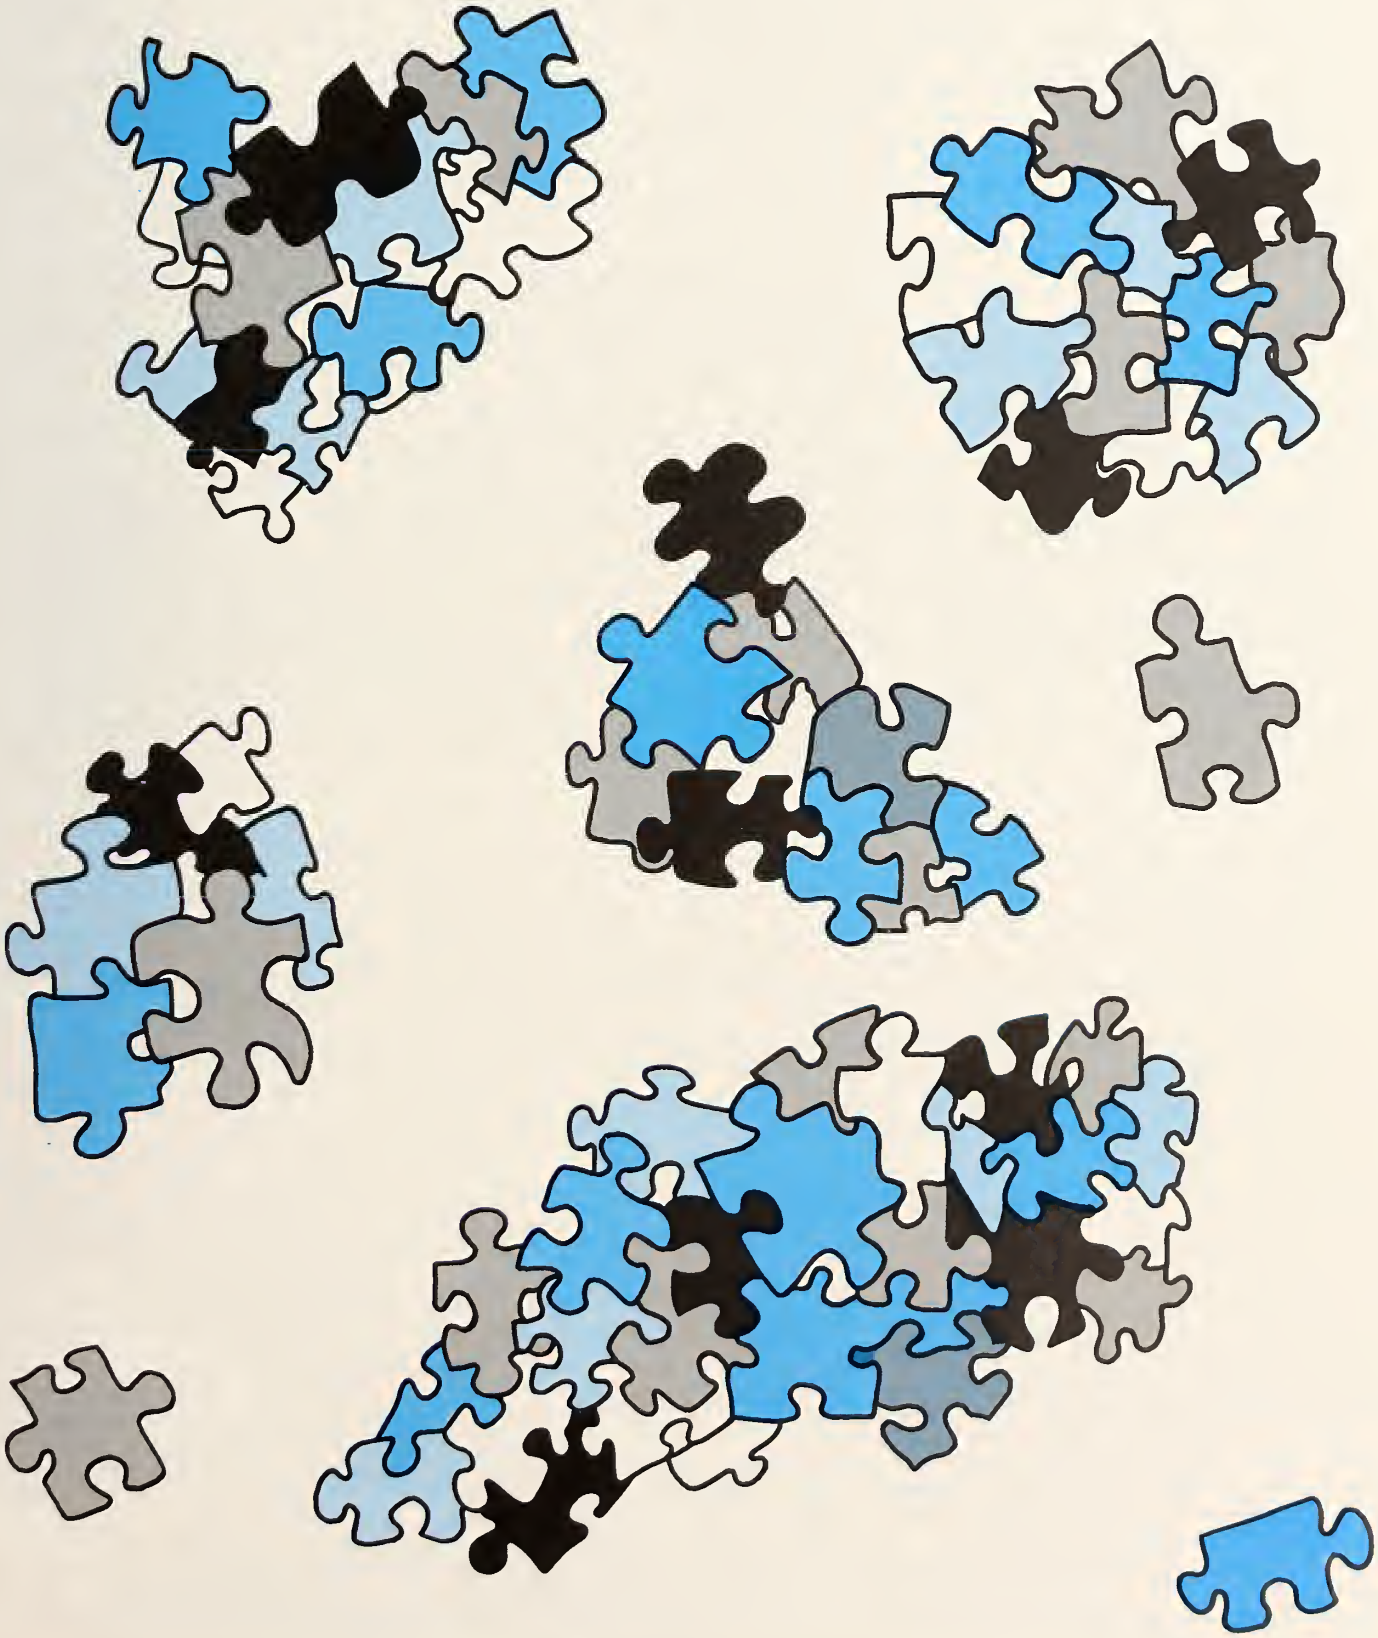
"Not chaos-like together crush'd and bruis'd,
But, as the world, harmoniously confus'd:
Where order in variety we see,
And where, though all things differ, all agree."

Alexander Pope



The paradox of a jigsaw puzzle is the chaos of its scattered pieces which can be resolved to form one unified and perfectly structured unit. Like the puzzle, a high school's seemingly chaotic and scattered segments can be fitted together to form a unified and harmoniously structured community.

In looking for major divisions in Longmeadow High School, one can easily find general categories such as students, faculty, academics, and extracurricular activities. However, these divisions can also be broken down into individual graduating classes, administrators, teachers in the various departments, courses that cover scores of subjects, and activities ranging from the varsity football team to the French club. As the dividing continues, the school's many aspects appear jumbled and disordered, like the pieces of the puzzle scattered across a table. Yet, eventually the pieces do fit together. Each class has its responsibilities in the workings of the school, whether they be organizing Homecoming Day or ushering for graduation. The administration conducts the business of the school, while the faculty devotes its time to the student body. Academic distribution requirements ensure a well rounded education for L.H.S. students, and the many course choices allow for even more variety and diversity. Extracurricular activities complete the last sections of the Longmeadow High School puzzle by connecting diverse student talent with activities that generate school spirit and unity.

Only when one looks closely into the dis-(INDIVIDUALITY)order at L.H.S. will the true meaning of the order stand out.

At a glance, one might interpret the multifaceted activity at L.H.S. to be chaotic. Yet, a closer look would reveal that the disorder is actually a complex network of opportunities in the school, through which the student can search to find his individual order.

Each student chooses to engage in his own unique selection of activities. Selections may overlap or completely differ between students depending upon how similar or different their interests. The combined arrangement of the diverse individuals complete the final puzzle section that encompasses the unified student body.

DEDICATION 1979

When we asked the senior class to suggest ideas for this dedication, we were met by a storm of multifarious answers. Some replies were serious and some were humorous, which showed us in another way the different approaches to a problem that the human mind can take.

Throughout this book, we emphasize how the scattered, diverse aspects of the school all seem to fit together when perceived in their full perspective. In searching for a subject to which this yearbook would be dedicated, we found the exception to our thesis: the student mind. Thoughts and opinions of a mass of people cannot be snapped together to harmonize and form a single picture; human thought is unstructured and free. By devoting this page to a few of the many suggestions from the senior class, we herebye dedicate the 1979 Masacksic to the freedom and infinite diversity of the individual mind.

"Dr. Charles Konopka — Excellent teacher and fine humanitarian, great person — always there when you need him."

"The Dime Lady — She has served our school with fortitude and grace through the years."

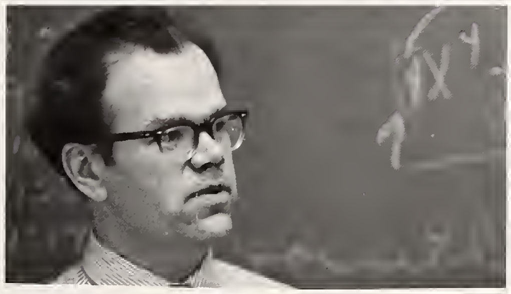
"Library Patrol — Please stop using whips; they are too noisy."

"Archie and his custodial staff — The school could never be able to handle the many activities without them."

"Mr. Stockwell — The best sports coach."

"To the people who have suffered to improve the world we live in."

"Mr. McCarthy — Good teacher, friend, helpful and pleasant."



"Roger 'The Dodger' Leblanc — Great person to know and work with."

"Fran Simanski — The improvement he has brought to his office, in terms of openmindedness."

"Mrs. Lowe R.N. — She's always there when you need her — except at lunch."

"Peter Thompson — Unsung hero of the faculty."

"Theo — Swim Team's #1 fan."

"Mr. Quinn - I think he has added alot to the history curriculm."

"Mr. Joe Winseck — His rigorous A.P. course changed my values from idealist to realist."

"Mrs. Dudley — A fine teacher, who really cares about the students."

"To Mickey Mouse on his 50th birthday."

"Ode to the last class of the 70's."

"Cafeteria Staff — For providing the ammunition for our glorious food fights."

The Senior Class, a significant section of the Longmeadow High School puzzle itself, can be broken down into many smaller sections and pieces that cover various aspects of senior life. During their senior year, members of the class follow three basic lines of activity: completing their high school courses of study, celebrating graduation, and preparing for the years after commencement. The lines are separate, but they all merge in June.

In order to earn his diploma, the senior must continue his studies throughout his fourth year. This task becomes increasingly difficult to carry out, for the senior often begins to feel separated from the high school environment as his plans for the future unfold. Yet, if this line is neglected, graduation is an impossibility. Senior electives, however, include courses that may deal with subjects more relevant to the student's future interests. Therefore, while continuing to fulfill his high school requirements, the senior can begin to pursue knowledge in his prospective career.

The mood for senior celebration and festivities, the second line of senior activities, starts early in the year at the Senior Picnic and at class council meetings, where committees are formed to plan the later events. The Senior Class Play comes in the middle of the year, giving the seniors their first taste of the excitement to come. Finally in June, an entire week, "Senior Week", is devoted to celebration. The long-awaited banquet, prom, and all-night party finally arrive during this hectic, but thoroughly enjoyable week.

Amidst their studying and celebrating, the seniors must also take part in a third course of action: making plans for after graduation. College Board testing, college applications, and interviews mainly take place during the first half of the year. Those seniors who plan to work after graduation are also busy with vocational training and job applications. By the spring, almost all seniors have a good idea of what they will be doing after high school. All thoughts begin to be directed towards the future, and school work becomes less and less of a concern.

When graduation finally arrives, the seniors anxiously accept their diplomas. The three courses of action taken during the past year have merged and intergrated into the completed senior puzzle. Prepared young adults depart from the high school, disconnected enough from the school to have few worries about leaving it. Yet, the memories of their past four years will remain throughout their lives.

The Senior Class of '79 displayed their spirit in the overwhelming turnout at the first class council meeting. There enthusiastic planning for senior events began with the September class picnic at Look Park.

The main objective of the senior class council was to unite the class through numerous activities; making everyone feel like a part of the class of 1979. The seniors worked towards this goal with activities such as dances, the carnation sale and delivery, and the newly originated sale of class mugs and T-Shirts.

The Over-Sixties Club Dinner was a successful attempt by the class council to unite students with the community. Slave Day, aimed towards involving all four classes, was another senior originated activity to promote unity.

The Class of 1979 also displayed their pride in their new status as they excitedly planned the traditional class play, prom, and banquet that lead them to the final step on June 10th.

daisies dip weeds

Adding to the Homecoming spirit, the senior girls enthusiastically participated in the traditional Daisy-Weeds game. Spirit was high as the girls were surprised at the overwhelming spectator turnout. The voluptuous cheerleaders provided halftime entertainment as they kept the crowds roaring. Rusty Brand, Dean Yesu and Paul Loizzo offered their coaching expertise to the Weeds while Terry Burke and David Boyd advised the Daisies.

The teams were pretty evenly matched as the score remained even for most of the game. During the remaining few minutes excitement increased as the Daisies broke through the stagnance and scored the winning touchdown, ending the game at 7-0.

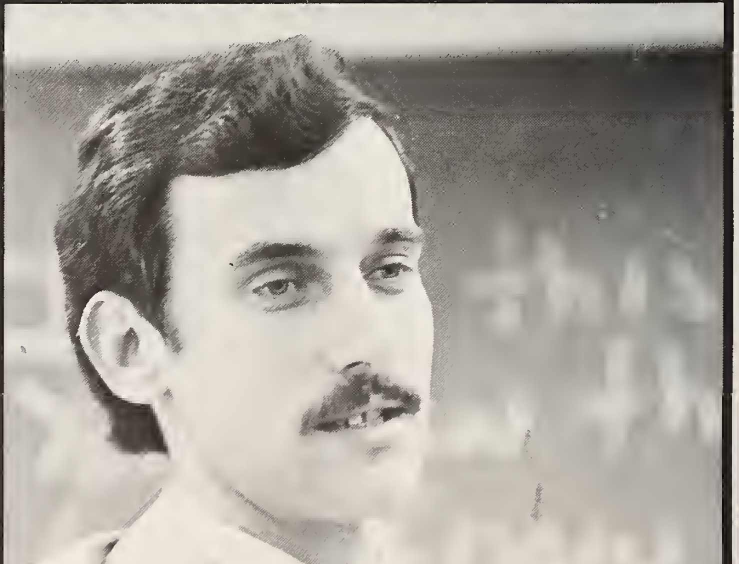
special thanks

In our dedication, many seniors expressed their wishes to recognize and give special thanks to the class advisors, Mrs. Patricia Miller and Mr. Dennis Pike. These two hardworking individuals have devoted much of their time to the organization and culmination of the senior class and its activities. They were ever-present through class council meetings, major project meetings, and, of course, the turmoil of the "Lil' Abner" rehearsals. Without their presidency of productiveness, providence, and pride, the senior class could never have enjoyed such a successful final year.



aides add new dimension to resource program

The new resource system operating at L.H.S. has brought about a need for a new group of people in the school. Three full-time resource aides and one full-time tutor joined the staff this year. Mrs. Martsen, a recent graduate of Westfield State College, considers this role of dealing with high school students a challenging experience and relevant work in determining her future master's study. Mrs. Dieni was a substitute for four years before coming to L.H.S. Mrs. Dilanian, a seven-year teaching veteran, felt that it was time to resume her career after an extended absence. All three women have enjoyed working with L.H.S. students and have found the experience very rewarding. Midge Montagna, the full-time tutor, has had much experience working with students of all ages. She expressed an admiration for today's teenagers because of their strong sense of responsibility and determination.

The duty of a full-time resource aide is to assist the resource teachers by providing individualized help for the students. They work with students assigned to the resource center and with those who have come on their own accord to seek further help in a subject. It is the aide's responsibility to be knowledgeable in all areas in which a student may need guidance. They also audit, or sit in on classes, to familiarize themselves with current subject material. Department heads often call on the aides to assist them with special projects being conducted. Those who took advantage of resource areas had a great appreciation for the resource aides who were ready to lend a hand to all needy students.

Shanty — Jonathan Edwards

Gonna sit down in the kitchen
Fix me something good to eat, and make my head a little high, make the whole day complete
Cuz we're gonna lay around the shanty-momma and put a good buzz on Well pass it to me baby,
Well pass it to me slow
We'll take time out to smile a little before we let it go
Cuz we're ....
There ain't nothing to do and there is always Room for more
Fill it, light it, shut up and close the door
Cuz we're ...
We're gonna sit around the kitchen fix us something good to eat-and make ourselves a little high make the whole day complete
Cuz we're ...
Well every night and day if i can help it
We're gonna lay around the shanty and put
A good buzz on ..

One of the most crucial sections of the Longmeadow High School Puzzle is that of the administration and faculty. Between the two groups is divided the business and the very function of the school, teaching. The administration oversees the running of the school; their work involves dealing with teachers, maintainance workers, and the town's school department. The teachers, on the other hand, devote their time to the task of teaching the L.H.S. students.

We can furthur break down the faculty section into the various departments and then subdivide it into individual courses and classes. Each department covers a broad, distinctive part of education. Course distribution requirements ensure that each student gets at least a small sample of almost every department. Each teacher within the departments specializes in a few select courses. This policy makes every individual puzzle piece vital to the entire department picture.

Adding even more variety to the faculty than the subjects they teach are the activities in which they engage themselves outside of the school. Mr. Gironda holds a law degree, Mr. Meritt has been a National Park Ranger in the Grand Canyon, and Dr. Eaton rides and shows American saddle horses. Mr. Texeira once played professional soccer in New York City, Miss Taylor has bicycled through Central Europe, and Mrs. Dolgin is writing a cookbook for her relatives which her son has dubbed "Eve's Garden of Eating".

Members of the faculty constitute the majority of our team coaches, supplying an important link between academics and athletics. Many of them also devote much of their time to advising clubs and organizations. While also linking the academic facet of the school to extra curricular pursuits, this involvement of our teachers allows for more friendly relationships to grow between faculty and students. Thus, the faculty section of the L.H.S. puzzle is a group of diverse individuals who serve the vital purpose of running the school's business and functions.

Getting To Know ...

Mr. Simanski's role as student advisor is more complicated than many realize, as it requires communication with those in the school as well as in the community about school rules and policies. He also deals with general problems of the school, such as cafeteria cleanup and maintaining a "study" atmosphere in the library.

Mr. Simanski feels that his major role is helping students meet their responsibilities. He does this by getting students to attend class and by helping them fulfill their course demands. Another major role of Mr. Simanski's is supervising student activities. He oversees student governments, clubs, funds, assemblies, and many other related programs.

All of these responsibilities clearly lead to the conclusion that as student advisor, Mr. Simanski is involved with almost every type of person and issue in the school. Despite the long hours, he continues to do his job well and deserves to be commended.

Teacher's Report Cards

Not all school systems evaluate their teachers. However, each year the faculty of Longmeadow High School is evaluated before contracts are drawn for the following year.

In the tenure contract, teachers are evaluated on the basis of their competence and behavior. The annual evaluation discusses the teachers' tactics, new programs, and improved teaching skills and abilities. The form is then signed by the principal, the department chairman, and the teacher who is being evaluated. The non-tenure evaluation differs from this in that there are several evaluations written during the year on the teacher's knowledge and abilities. These evaluations form the basis for the decision on the reinstatement of the contract.

When the Longmeadow school system began, the superintendant and administrators constructed the standard evaluation form. It was to be understood that all teachers in Longmeadow would be evaluated to ensure that their jobs were being done, and to provide opportunity for improve-

The administration feels that the evaluation is a necessary and helpful process which can be beneficial to new teachers. It gives them a chance to strengthen their abilities, and it provides an orientation which helps them adjust to our system. The evaluation, which has not changed in all of its twenty-two years, has been a successful one, giving Longmeadow a staff of highly skilled professionals and an overall superior educational system.

Getting To Know ...

Mr. Jangl, familiar to many students as the varsity girls' soccer and the track and field coach, is L.H.S.'s first life education teacher. Mr. Jangl feels that in the "Dynamic 70's" life education is an extremely important part of education. The many misconceptions about such areas as drugs and human sexuality need to be clarified.

Mr. Jangl grew up in the White Plains, New York area. His hobbies include cross-country skiing, motorcycling and back-packing. Mr. Jangle feels that hobbies like these help one develop a deep appreciation for the world around. "Travel in itself is an education all its own ... it gets you in touch with yourself and other people ... how you interact with other people and yourself."

Mr. Jangl takes teaching very seriously. He feels that learning is fun if the teacher is an individual who finds meaning in what he or she teaches. The teacher must be very dedicated to his profession. This interest then becomes contagious, and the students look upon learning as being fun, not as a chore. Mr. Jangl's education formula is:

dedication + ethusiasm = an enjoyable learning experience.

For coaching two varsity girls' sports, Mr. Jangl is very qualified. He had previously been a boys' coach, but when he came to L.H.S. the position with the girls was open. As a dedicated coach, Mr. Jangl took it. Mr. Jangl holds no prejudice, as he is an equal opportunist, and he has found that the girls are just as competitive as the boys. Mr. Jangl feels that coaching has allowed students to see him in a different perspective, as a real person outside of the classroom.

In his free time, Mr. Jangl enjoys being with people and learning from what they offer. Other people can open your mind just as powerfully as chemicals, he contends. Mr. Jangl also enjoys variety, in personalities and in activities, feeling that it is "Definitely a mind expanding experience".

Teachers Teach Teachers

At the October English Department meeting, Mr. Melvin H. Grant, a senior English teacher, conducted a workshop on the teaching of writing. In attendance were the high school English teachers and the Assistant Superintendant of Schools, Mr. Morton Milesky.

The workshop dealt primarily with new methods of teaching writing at the high school. One method, called "creative dialogue," involves small groups of students discussing several provocative questions assigned by the teacher. First, the students attempt to come to some conclusions about the questions. Later, a spokesperson from the group reports on the group's decisions. Finally, they write a composition based on the discussion. The object of the program is to examine old assumptions and to generate a new way of student thinking and writing.

Another technique taught in the workshop was "cross editing" or "peer editing." This involves students reading each other's papers and commenting on them. This method provides each student with instant feedback on his paper before it is handed in.

During the workshop, the English teachers readily participated in trial runs of these new methods and found them very exciting. Although the teachers did not attempt a third writing strategy, the "writing laboratory," they thought it had admirable qualities. This technique has students write at their own speed for several weeks during class periods, with the teacher acting as an editor. The teacher checks on each student's progress at every step of organizing and writing the paper until it is completed. Then, the student goes on to a more difficult topic. The teachers and Mr. Milesky found this mini-symposium very enjoyable as well as beneficial to the advancement of English instruction at the high school.

Jogging!. Everyone knows that Ms. Ellis jogs. After all, jogging is a popular method of getting into shape. Yet, her jogging may be a key to learning more about Ms. Ellis. Not only is it an activity which she can do with her family, jogging gives her a good feeling about herself. Ms. Ellis also engages in other activities during her free time; she enjoys reading, classical music and ballet.

One principle in which Ms. Ellis firmly believes is that people should have "more opportunities without sex role restrictions." Ms. Ellis feels that people are becoming more aware of the problems dealing with sex discrimination. She expresses a need for a balancing of roles in our society, with women more active in careers and men taking on more family responsibilities. Ms. Ellis imparts her beliefs by working to increase the flexibility of teaching policies at L.H.S.

Ms. Ellis also applies her ideas at home since she and her husband work and share in taking care of their son, Peter. She lists three responsibilities of the working parent: acting as a good parent, pursuing a desired career, and insuring good child care. To accomplish this, the working parent should work closely with those providing the care, and can also form informal parental support groups which would allow parents to share mutual problems. Together, Ms. Ellis and her husband spend about eight hours per week working on the board of directors of their son's day care center in order to continue the high quality of the program there.

Ms. Ellis is one who has much to say about today's changing society. She is a busy woman who enjoys life. She says, "Everyday is a challenge for me. I'm very happy now and would not exchange my life with anyone."

The French Connection

Every year, a group of excited high school students embark upon a most memorable journey to the City of Light: Paris. Every April vacation, between twenty and twenty-five students go for one very exhilarating week which will not soon be forgotten. Mr. Potvin and Mr. Villeneuve, both French teachers, have been to Paris several times and act as the tour guides for the trip.

The tour flies first to London, where they spend the day sightseeing, then goes on to Paris. When the group arrives, they register at a cozy hotel where the staff is friendly and watches out for the students' well being. The week's trip concentrates on sight seeing and all touring is done either on foot or by the subway. Each day the group does something different. Highlights include visits to Versailles Palace, the Tuileries Gardens, and the Louvre, and strolling down massive Champs-Elysée. Many lasting relationships are formed among the travellers, "... one big family, we all get along," is a common comment.

The group is on the go day and night, eating European style and dancing disco, or just soaking in the glamorous French night-life. At the end of the stimulating experience, the students return home exhausted but happy, knowing that they have had a special week. "Just like we learned in French" is a popular description of the city.

Indeed, Paris awaits with a magic all its own for the privileged few wh make the trip.

Those who see Dr. Konopka as a fine teacher know only one side of him. He is also heavily into computer work and feels that computers should be used by all students at the high school level. He also feels that the computer field will grow significantly in the next few years and that people should start to think about getting involved in the data processing profession. He draws this conclusion from his current work in the Connecticut Department of Education as a consultant to computerize the laws passed by the legislature. Also related to his computer work, Dr. Konopka is the chairman of a capital expenditures commission that makes recommendations to the Board of Finance on how to spend the town's money alloted to large capital expenditures. He likes this work because it helps to pass spare time in addition to the enjoyment it provides. His positions in government enabled him to witness the Presidential inauguration in 1972.

It is amazing to think that Dr. Konopka has enough hours in the day for all this, but he does even more. He is the leader of the Faculty Dance Band, a group organized for the Variety Show that performs many types of music. He enjoys the student-teacher involvement generated by the band, and it also "takes up spare time." Dr. Konopka also plays tennis, goes dancing, is a magician, and a part time instructer in Electrical Engineering. Besides these activities, he will be married in May of this year. Says Dr. Konopka, "I think too many people become stagnant in their professions. They should keep up with life."

Mrs. Patricia Miller, a graduate of LHS, is currently one of our science teachers. Why, we ask, does one come back to teach at the same high school from which one graduated? She replies, "I just took a chance." As a student teacher here, Mrs. Miller enjoyed working with the science department and the students. When the time came to choose a permanent place to teach, LHS seemed inviting.

When asked about the changes at LHS, Mrs. Miller noted dress as a major difference between the students now and then. During her time, skirts and ties were required. It was the age of the miniskirt, but skirts were restricted to knee length. The students, Mrs. Miller feels, are now more open with each other. There are still cliques, but they don't appear to be as

In spite of being a former student, Mrs. Miller now feels comfortable relating to fellow staff members. Underclassmen constitute one of the larger sections of our growing puzzle. Since they make up the majority of the student body and since every graduate of the high school experiences each underclass step, these years are significant and worthy of close examination.

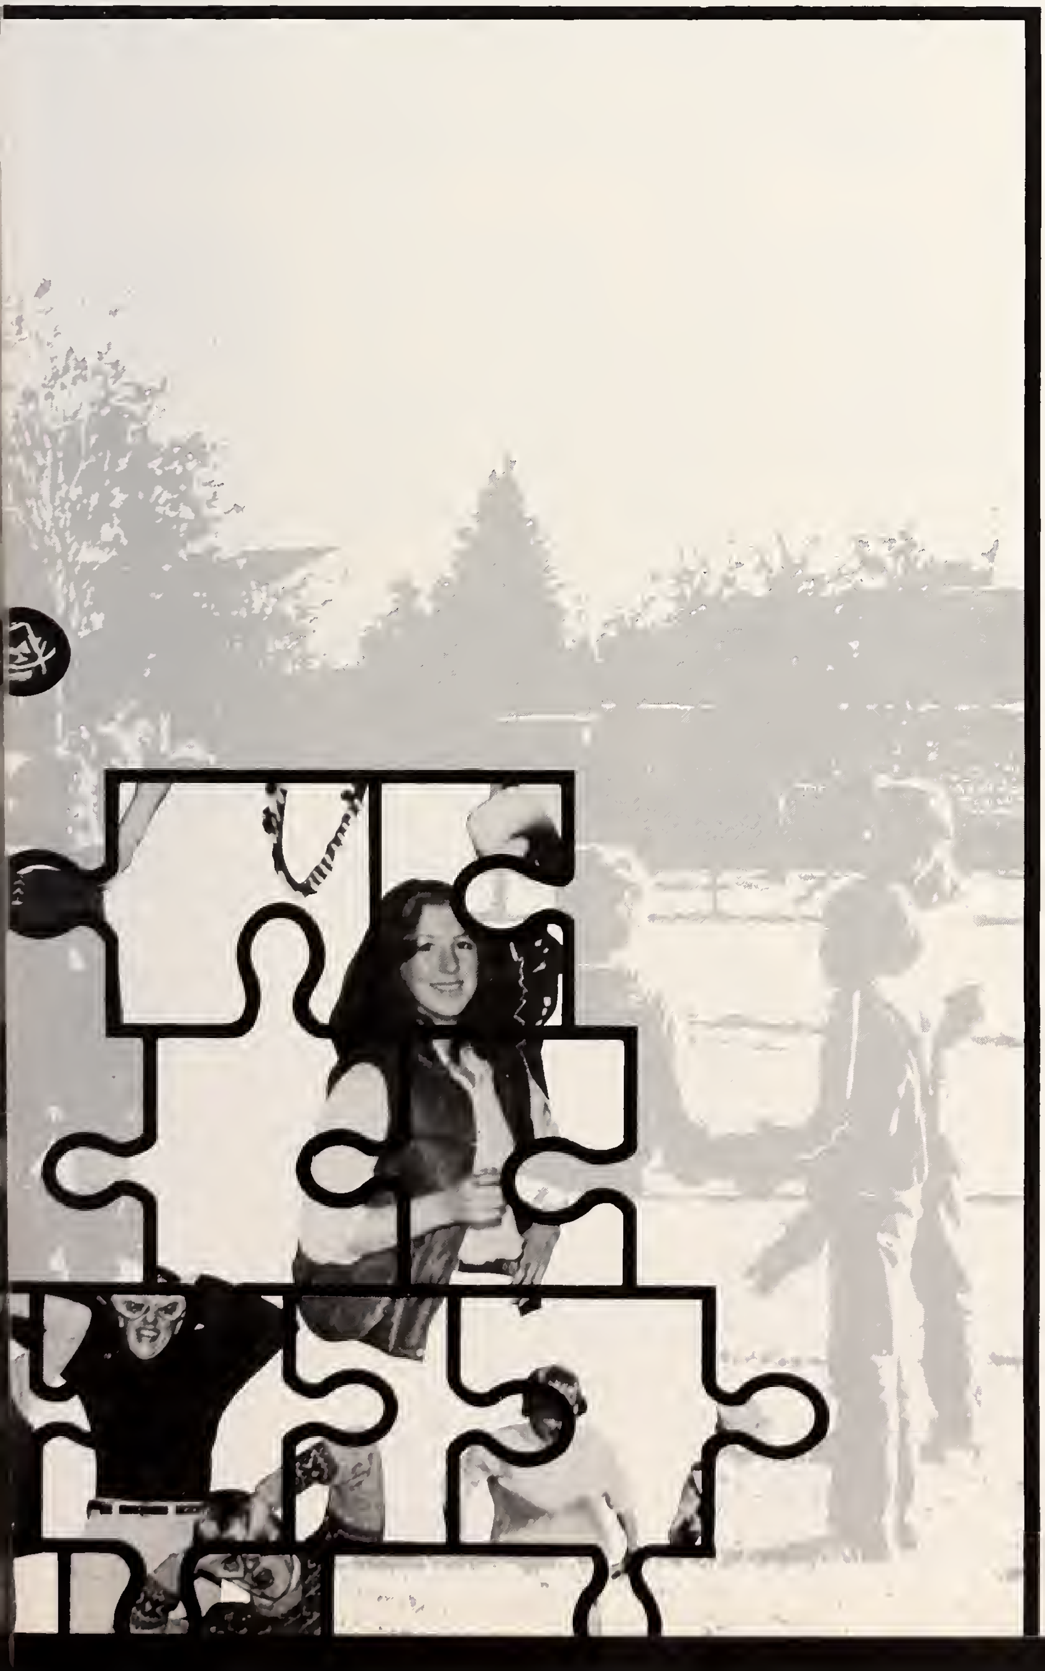
As a student enters Longmeadow High School in the fall of his freshman year, he begins a journey that will take him far on the road of wisdom and maturity. During this first year he becomes oriented to the high school routine. He is familiarized with the new surroundings, regulations, responsibilities, and people of L.H.S. His Longmeadow High School education also gets its start; introductory courses establish strong foundations in the Fine Arts, Sciences, Mathematics, and Liberal Arts.

The following September, when the student returns to L.H.S. as a sophomore, he is fully accustomed to high school life and is ready to meet new challenges. Junior Varsity and Varsity sports are now open to him, memberships in more clubs and organizations are available to him, and his course load is expanded with the start of the U.S. History program.

In his junior year, the student crosses the half-way point of his L.H.S. education, nearing the gloried senior year. He is granted certain privileges, such as last block release. Also, early preparations for post-graduate years begin, such as PSAT's, SAT's, and ACH's. By the spring, the juniors are in control of student activities, having taken over offices vacated by graduated seniors. They end their junior year as leaders of the school, set in their positions for their upcoming final high school year.



JUNIORS

As the pieces of the puzzle become more complete and begin to take final form for the class of '80, a message starts to come through. Now as Juniors, with only one year remaining, the class shows new found maturity and qualities of leadership that have not been seen before.

The class council is extremely organized and has many ideas for senior year. According to class advisor Mr. Vangsness, the Junior class is a "very well-rounded, multi-talented group who have done their share of contributing to the school as a whole."

From the way things look now, the Junior class of 1979 should be a super Senior class of 1980.

SOPHOMORES

The Sophomore Class, struggling to keep up with their older classmates in the school, often get lost in the crowd. Although they try to rise above the freshman, it is difficult because though they are not the youngest in the school anymore, they are not yet upperclassman.

The Class of 1981 has shown their determination through their many accomplishments in the fields of fund raising, services to the school, and services to the community. Their efforts have made them an outstanding part of Longmeadow High School.

FRESHMEN

The Freshman Class of 1982 began general enthusiasm from the start when they won the spirit link contest during Homecoming weekend.

They established a voluntary class council to encourage as much student participation as possible. With the help of advisors Mrs. Satta and Mr. Quinn, the Freshman class sponsored many successful activities such as a dance and a horror movie.

Their most significant project was the annual Variety Show which demonstrated the school interest and dedication on the part of the class of 1982.

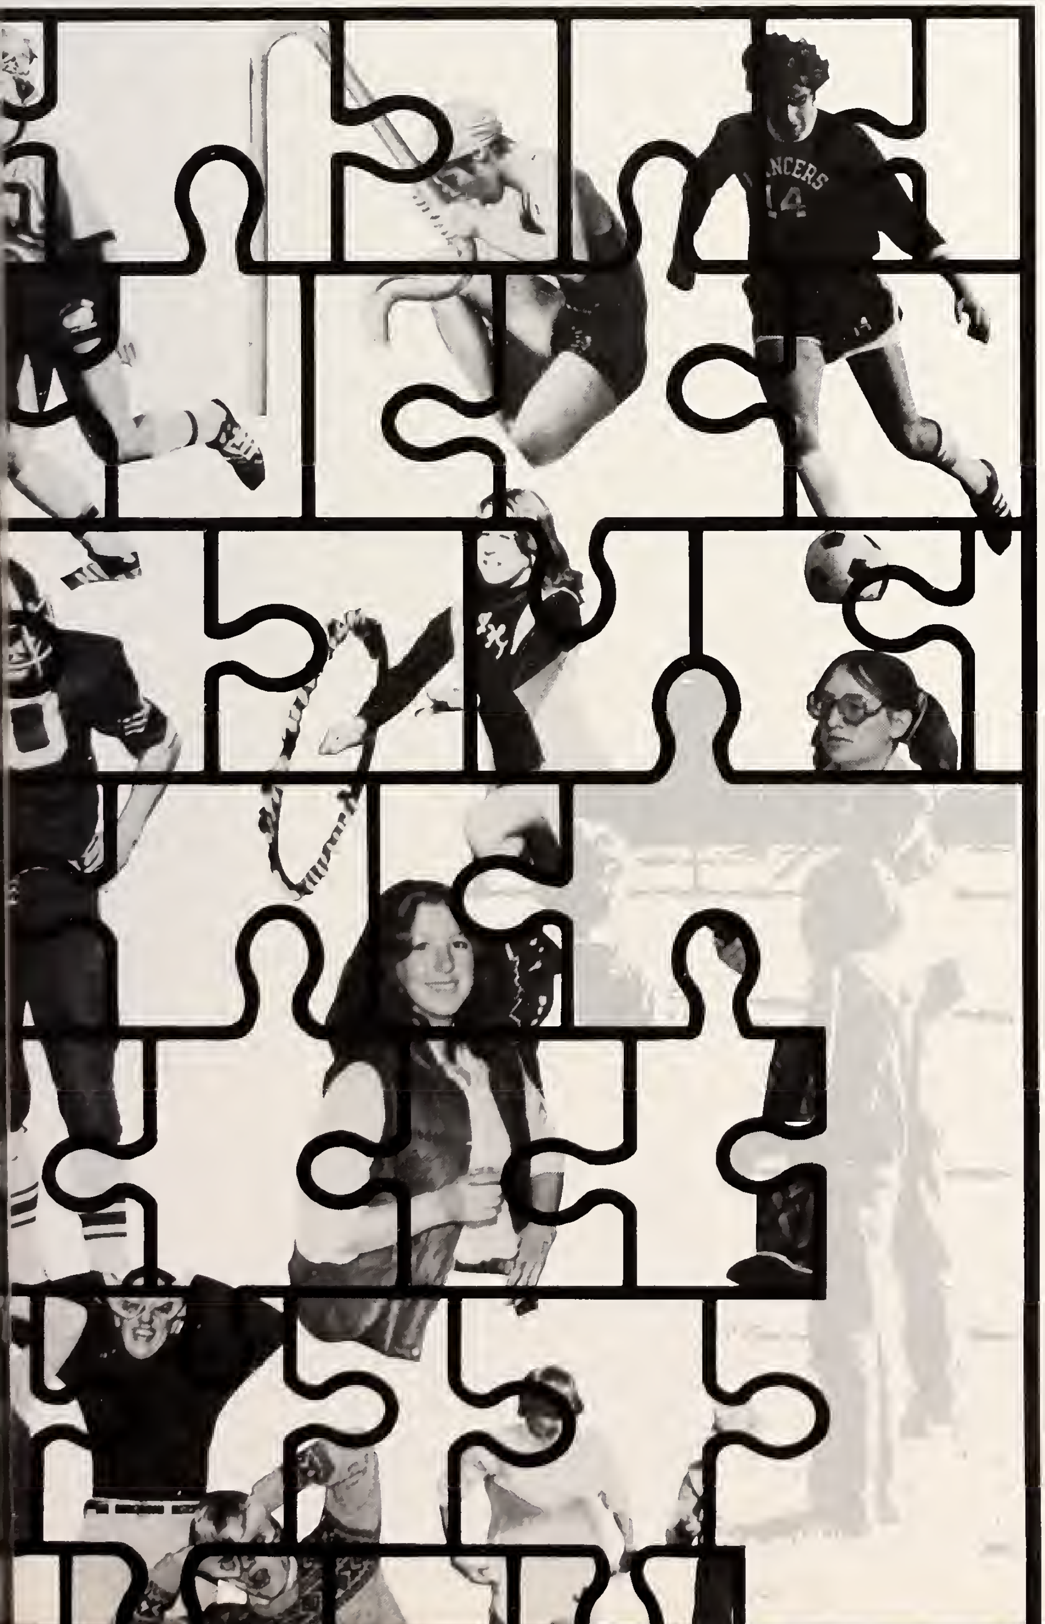
PORTS PORTS PORTS

The sports program at L.H.S. works its way into two important sections of the school puzzle. First, it provides athletic students with opportunities to develop and utilize their skills. Secondly, sports provide a unifying factor among all students, a goal and a reason for spirit that drives Lancer fans to attend sporting events and cheer for their teams.

It is difficult to adequately describe the feelings of warm friendship that are present among teammates. The common suffering through long practices serves as an unexpressed bond between the group members. It then is all made worthwhile as two friends skillfully assist each other in scoring a goal or blocking a pass. The joint effort among the teammates, whether it is successful or not, does succeed in bringing the group together.

It is not only the team members who are brought together by sporting events. Games have traditionally been important social functions for all students at L.H.S. Saturday afternoon football games, Friday night basketball games, and afterschool lacrosse games serve as meeting places for friends and fans of the school's athletes. A sporting event is also a place where parents and members of the community can get involved in the school.

A successful season of any one of our teams brings athletic prominence and glory to the school. Longmeadow High becomes known throughout the area as a school that can produce a high caliber athletic team. We gain a reputation that rests on the challenge of upholding our high standard of excellence in sports.



GIRLS' BASKETBALL

This year's girls' varsity basketball team, led by rookie coach Cathy McInnis, proved their expertise on the court by completing the season with an outstanding record. Several seniors added tremendous strength and skill to the team; Kathy Tate and Nancy Campbell proved to be reliable centers, and Renée Daskalakis maintained her sharp shooting reputation as she scored an impressive average of twenty points per game. Brenda Skelley's continuing spring for rebounds led her to achieve an average of fifteen points per game. Seniors Theresa Doyle, Annette Ferazzi, Pam Mooney, and Vanessa Radke also provided indespensable driving force which added to the success of the team. Gina Ferazzi, a returning junior, was both a skillful ball handler and a definite offensive threat! The two sophomores on the team, Dierdre O'Reilly and Monique Lussier, exhibited much potential for starting varsity next year.

The coach and girls are proud of their game against Chicopee Comp. early in the season. The girls put up an outstanding fight and came close to breaking Chicopee Comp's fourty-two game winning streak.

The girls admit that working as a team would not have come so naturally had they not been friends off the court. They enjoyed an exciting and successful season, while also building the girls' varsity basketball team into a model of the great L.H.S. sportsmanship.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The 1978-1979 Longmeadow High School basketball season was one of the best ever. Led by super seniors Tyrone Settles, J.R. Chase, David Hastings, and Dave Boudreaux the Lancers captured the valley wheel title over very tough competition. Varsity Coach Ron Morrisette demonstrated his true talents by still winning the league crown after losing his leading scorer, Tyrone Settles, to injuries during the second East Longmeadow game. Up to that point, the Lancers were undefeated in the League. Although they lost to Minnechaug and Amherst, they managed to hold onto the league lead and gain a berth in the Division I Tournament. Also contributing heavily to the team effort were seniors Peter Kumeiga, Mike Curtin, Glenn Goodman, John Webb and crowd pleaser Mark Sullivan. The very promising juniors that will lead next year's team include Billy Sherman, Alan Burton, Greg Boudreaux and Eric Seigal. These players all showed flashes of brilliance during many vital moments in this past season. Another promising junior is J.V. Coach Ken Pulsford's Mark Hurwitz, who is a Varsity prospect for next year. These juniors will be hard pressed to replace Tyrone Settles's magic on the court and David Hastings's clutch rebounding but should at least continue the Lancer tradition of competitive basketball teams.

BOY'S SOCCER

The Lancers Varsity Soccer Team, one of the best soccer teams Longmeadow has produced in years, was characterized by hard work, diligent practices, aggressive play, and strong enthusiasm. Despite injuries plaguing the team the entire season and a mid - season slump, the players, were still able to maintain high spirits and complete a highly successful season.

Co-captains Colin "Harry" Harrington, Mike "Vitz" Hurwitz, Steve "Shot" Marr, and John "Wasser" Wass added much support to the efforts of Coaches Ron Morisette, Bob Delano, and Charlie Johnson. Several team meetings, pep talks, captains meetings, and weekend morning practices all created a sense of dedication, spirit, and togetherness.

Leading the team in both goals and assists was talented John Deliso with key players Brooke Paulides and Colin Harrington close behind. Starting fullbacks John Moriarty, Steve Marr, Tom Weston, starting halfbacks Mike Hurwitz, Alan Chabot, Andy Mazalo, and Dave Damon all contributed to an excellent season including post - season tournament play. As one of the most successful fall sports at L.H.S., the Longmeadow Boys' Soccer Team is, in one word, PROUD.

The members of the Junior Varsity Soccer Team ended their season with the satisfaction of knowing that their skills had significantly improved. The overall record was six wins, eight losses, and three ties. Yet, Coach Roger Leblanc said that his team made more progress than any of the past teams. All players played at least half of the time, and they "really learned to play soccer." The most valuable players were Juniors Doug Shapiro and Bill Rowe.

Next year's varsity team looks promising, as it could include such excellent J.V. players as Captains Pat Ratkowski and Stuart Damon, and Juniors Eric Siegel and Dave Fisk. There were even some sophomores, such as Scott Hansen, Hans Rempel, Peter Hager, and Bobby Gomez, who showed exceptional skill and promise for the future of Lancers Soccer.

GIRLS' SOCCER

Take a group of spirited girls, carefully select experienced captains and a coach, add a skillful goalie, top it off with a soccer ball, and you have the Longmeadow Girls' Soccer Team.

The 1978 Lancerette Soccer Team completed its second season as a varsity sport, maintaining a reputation of combining continual effort with fun. The skill and aggressiveness which they displayed during games was continued after the games in the form of water balloon and having cream fights. Co-captain Jean Sullivan reinforced this idea by saying, "Our team had a lot of 'finess' and fun times which resulted in a great season."

The team was comprised of much talent, including sophomore Kathy Jenkins, top scorer on the offense. Key figures on the defense were senior fullbacks Debbie Schintzer and Rennee Daskalakis.

The high point of the season came during the team's memorable game against Commerce when their hard work earned them an overwhelming 13 to 1 victory.

Mr. Jangl coached the girls' soccer team and improved the players' games through many hours of hard practice. This year the girls had a lot of determination and drive which will hopefully be continued by next year's Lancerette soccer team.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Lancers Cross-Country team had its best season ever, led by Western Mass. champion Stuart Sears, to a 7-2 record. Coach Joseph Winseck's long distance runners were defeated only by an exceptional Amherst team and a Southwick squad, which beat the Lancers by a slim point. The number one runner on the team was, of course, Stuart Sears, who ran undefeated in Western Mass., and finished eighth in the state competition. His twin brother, Andy, also proved to be a great asset to the team, without whom the Lancers could never have been as successful.

Many runners outside of the Sears family were also instrumental to Longmeadow's team. Tim Sterritt, a promising junior, will be the top runner on next year's team. Mike Griffin, a senior, did exceptionally well, especially since this was his first year on the team. Bret Holliday, a junior, was also a solid participant and should prove to be an even greater asset to the team next year.

The junior varsity team was equally proficient, led by Mike Horowitz and Mike Corcoran. In light of their fine showing, the future of Longmeadow's Cross-Country team looks even brighter than ever.

FIELD HOCKEY

At the beginning of the 1978 season, the Field Hockey team was young and inexperienced. The girls knew they would have to work hard to uphold Longmeadow's victorious tradition, and work they did! Through diligent practice and great effort they increased their strength and experience as the season progressed. By the end of the season, they were in third place, with a league record of 7-4-1, and an overall record of 7-7-1.

The team was lead by senior captains Martha Prybylo and Linda Schupack. The top scorers were: Kerry Leduc, 6 goals; Gina Ferazzi, 2 goals, 2 assists; Becca Jones, 2 goals; Linda Schupack, 2 goals; Peggy Creed, 1 goal, 3 assists; Venessa Radke, 1 goal, 1 assist.

Seniors Linda Doherty, Vanessa Radke and Judy Ryan, as well as sophomore Dierdre O'Reilly were great assets to the team, playing a strong defense. Offense too, was played with strength by captain Linda Schupack and juniors Peggy Creed and Kerry Leduc.

Spirit was high in Lancerettes Field Hockey this year. The girls dressed up on Halloween, went out together for dinner, and had a lot of fun. Since the majority of the team's members were underclassmen, we'll expect to see them back scoring points in '79!

GIRLS SWIMMING

Led by seven all-Western Massachusetts Swimmers, the Lancers girls' swim team had its most successful season ever. Their unblemished Division 1 record, 13-0, Western Mass. title, and fourth place finish in the State competition attest to this fact. Only two of the seven selected swimmers were seniors, standouts Brenda Skelly and Nancy Riker. Brenda holds the record in the individual medley, Nancy in the 500-yard freestyle, and both share the record in the butterfly. Sophomores Joyce Bott, Leslie Picard, Lisa Crosby, and Kathy Griffin, and freshman Vicky Kotarski were also named to the all-Western Mass. squad. Joyce holds the school record in the 50, 100, and 200 yard freestyle events. By the end of the season, every swimming record at the school had been broken.

The team, guided through the season by coaches Judi Gregory, Linda Segur, and Mindy Cram, and captains Brenda Skelly and Martha Tripp, voted Brenda Skelly and Brenda Doherty as Most Valuable Swimmer and Diver, and Barbie Brennen and Julie Wilkinson as Most Improved Swimmer and Diver. Even though this was the best Lancer girls' swim team ever, next season seems even more promising because of the excellence of many underclassmen.

FOOTBALL

After their dissappointing first four games, the Lancer football squad, sparked by the passing combination of co-captain Peter Kumiega and Rob Leary, won four out of their last six games including an exciting last second victory over Northampton, 19-14. The team started slowly with a tie at Fermi and three straight losses to Classical, Amherst, and South Hadley. Then the defense got together, led by David Mech, John Demarche, and David Boyd, to defeat Ludlow, 24-14. The next week proved to be both an inspiration and a disappointment as the Lancers lost a tough game to Suburban League Champion, Minnechaug, 13-7. The Lancer's best showing came three weeks later when they shut out Holyoke Catholic, 20-0. In the final week of the season, the Lancers lost the annual showdown with East Longmeadow, 33-22.

Although the team finished with a 4-5-1 record, they showed character and good potential for next year by winning four out of their last six games. Despite the fact that many outstanding seniors will be graduating, such as offensive lineman Ralph Merillo, Paul Loisso, and co-captain Dean Yesu, many excellent juniors, such as Richard Wood, Mike Shoen, and John Fletcher will still be here to lead the team next season.

The Lancers started off the season by attending a week-long summer football camp at Koinoia School of Sports. A typical day at the camp started at 6:30 A.M., when the team hopped out of bed to go jogging and to do a circuit of calisthenics before sitting down to breakfast. The rest of the morning was spent at a skull session and at practice. After lunch and some free time, the team continued practice and concluded the day's work with another circuit and weight lifting.

After dinner, the boys were amused by "rookie entertainment", whereby the rookies had to successfully entertain the team or face the "consequenses." The camp, it has been noted, was a very safe place to be. The guys did not have to worry about security at all, for the fearless "Rat Patrol" was ready to protect them. This "organized group of rebels", which consisted of brave seniors, patrolled the darkness of the camp. However, it was not all work for these men; they got the chance to engage in "cow tipping" and other unmentionable activities.

Highlights of the week include a scrimmage with Putnam High School's team, seeing the movie "Grease", pigging out at Mike Deary's Ice Cream Stand, and watching the highlight film of the 1977 season. The week's work concluded back at Westfield High School, where the team had the chance to engage in another scrimmage.

CHEERLEADING

Although the games are won by their players, it is the cheerleaders who generate the enthusiasm that spurs our team to victory. Upon these girls falls the task of taking a group of spectators and turning them into a group of screaming, cheering fans. Each year our cheerleaders invent new and original ways of psyching everybody up for the games, and this year was no exception. There were several new line cheers added to the repertory, as well as a new move, where the squad forms pyramids.

The squad, led by Senior Captain Patty Clark and Junior Co-Captain Laura Poppo, became really close this year. With their advisor, Mrs. Sarno, the girls enjoyed many happy times out of school, such as at Patty's sleepover party. They also enjoyed luncheons before each football game, with the "hostess for the day" hanging her pom-poms outside of her door.

After the pre-game luncheons, the cheerleaders rode around the town, beeping their car horns to generate excitement. Once at the game, our girls were filled with more pep and spirit, as they shouted for the team. The cheerleaders of the 1978-79 athletic season were busy, but they continued to be as spectacular as ever. The squad, itself, deserves a big, loud cheer.

RIFLE/WRESTLING

With victories over Choate, Vermont Academy and Wilbraham-Monson highlighting the season, the Rifle Team with its 6-6 overall record, prided seniors Walter Gunn, Robert Richfield and Mark Diefenderfer. This team had the best record of recent years and brought back visions of past great teams. This year's "Top Gun" award went to Freshmen Danny Engleman with Rob Richfield a close second. Coach Ray Villeneuve stated that it was a team effort which resulted in its fine showing.

Although there were not many victories for the wrestling team, nothing stopped them from exhibiting a spirited attitude and competing as hard as they could. Led by senior captains Paul Mathisen and Brad Nichols, they faced an extremely difficult schedule in the Greater Springfield League, one of the toughest leagues in the area. Coach Norman Harris was pleased with this years performance but would like to see more developed wrestling programs in the middle schools, starting students wrestling early to build up the high school team. The Western Mass Varsity Tournament was held on Feb 16-17 at which Bob Simon placed fourth and Billy Riordan placed third in their respective weight catagories.

HOCKEY

After losing many graduates and moving into the tougher Fay division, this year looked as though it would bring only a rebuilding season for the Varsity Lancer Icemen. This was not the case, however, as the guys had an excellent season. Although the team was young, having only four seniors and including three freshmen, they showed their strength and talent throughout the season and should be proud of their accomplishments. The team was led by Captain Tim Hutchins and Assistant Captains Mark Broadbent and Steve Burnett. Tim had an admirable season as goalie, and Steve placed highly in the league for scoring. The team worked hard at practices under the watchful eye of Coach Ray Suzor, and all improved and strengthened their abilities. Defense was led by Mark Broadbent and Rick Sauve, and Tom Gomez and Steve Burnett led a strong offense. Other assets to the team included Senior Mario Fricchione, Juniors Jim Ferrero and Bill Cunningham, Sophomore David Thor, and Freshmen Karl Stelzer and Greg Fisk. Sporting an overall record of 11-10, the team showed great power and endurance in their first year of the new league.

GIRLS' GYMNASTICS

The girls' gymnastic team, coached by Jacky D'Salvo and Judy Gregory was probably the strongest ever. The team attributed its success to a combination of experience and depth. Captain Paula Shear had many fine fortunes on floor, vaulting, and her best, the uneven bars. Cindy Aivalis worked all-around with key performances on the beam. Heather Rowe showed her talents on beam, vaulting, and her favorite floor. The juniors who helped bring the team to its present prestige were Captain Brenda Doherty on beam and Caren Davidson on the unevens.

Many sophomores also added to the depth of the team. Sandy Bradford, an all-around, broke the school record on the beam, with a 7.65 performance. Carole Tomko and Karen Richfield were successful of the beam and floor, while Heather Wason concentrated on the unevens.

Other talented members were freshman Beth Wheeler and Sandy Muller. The entire team worked hard throughout the season, and their dedication showed up in many fine performances.

BOYS' GYMNASTICS

The year's Boys' Gymnastics team boasted one of the best seasons Longmeadow has ever had. Despite a 6-4 record, many school records were broken by team members. The team's improvement was largely due to a total team effort from all seventeen hard-working members. Coaches John Kober's and Ford Madden's outstanding assistance during practices enabled the team to develop their abilities. The best all-around gymnast on the team was senior Brooke Paulides and leading the team on the pommel horse was Dave Damon. The record breaking floor exercise team consisted of Mike Stenstrom, Peter Asselin and Brooke Paulides, with Mike taking charge of the individual floor exercises. Although the team is losing many outstanding seniors next season, the future still looks promising, as it will include David "Tank" Sherman who showed a great amount of talent this year.

BOYS' SWIMMING

The 1979 boys' smimming season was the best Longmeadow has ever witnessed. Led by Coach Mark Michelson, these Lancers swept every title. The team, in capturing the division I Championships, was undefeated, amassing a 14-0 record and twice beating their toughest opposition, Cathedral, breaking that team's 40 meet winning streak. The team went on to take Western Mass., for the first time, and concluded the season by capturing the State crown.

Scott Betsher won the 500 free and the 100 backstroke in Western Mass. And set a new record at the State competition. Senior John Bonnell exhibited his skill in the 50 and 100 free by taking 3rd and 5th places respectively in States. Diver Mike Sweitzer placed 3rd in Western Mass. and 9th in the States competition. Freestylers Mark McDermmott and Alan Greenspan and backstroker Dave Glaser also proved vital to the team's overall success. The underclassmen added great depth, especially in the breastroke where Chris Fraser, John Griffin, Todd Hartigan, and Louis Gomez all scored in the State meet. Betsher, Fraser, Midura, and Barez, the latter two with shaved heads, were the State champions in the medley reley with a time of 1.41.237. These amazing results of the hard work put in by both swimmers and coach distinguished this year's Lancers from their many defeated competitors.

SKI TEAM

The season began for the Lancer Ski Team in November before the first snowfall covered the ground. The first three weeks consisted of jogging, lifting weights, running gates on the hill and ended with a race at Otis Ridge in which the team did very well.

Changes in the league this year included a switch in mountains to Berkshire East, electric timing, giant slalom as well as slalom races, and a chance to compete agianst every team at each race. Practices were led by Coach McCarthy and Captains Jon Mandel and Jean Sullivan.

The team had great depth this year. The boys dominated their league, taking an overwhelming first place lead in all but one race and winning the Western Mass. League title. The girls also skied well and took second place in their league just behind Minnechaug. Top skiers included Tom Ely, Alan Chabot, Peter Gill, Jon Mandel, Joyce Leavitt, Jean Sullivan, Ellen Shammash, and Michele Wernick. Freshman skiers Tripp Lantz and Polly Lucier were also great assets to the team.

Highlights of the season included a weekend at the Mandel's house at Mt. Sunappee, bumper-sliding, a Brodie race, the arrival of Mr. McCarthy's baby, and DOUGHNUTS! Initiating skiers in the pool became a ritual at each practice. The team party was a good way to end a great season.

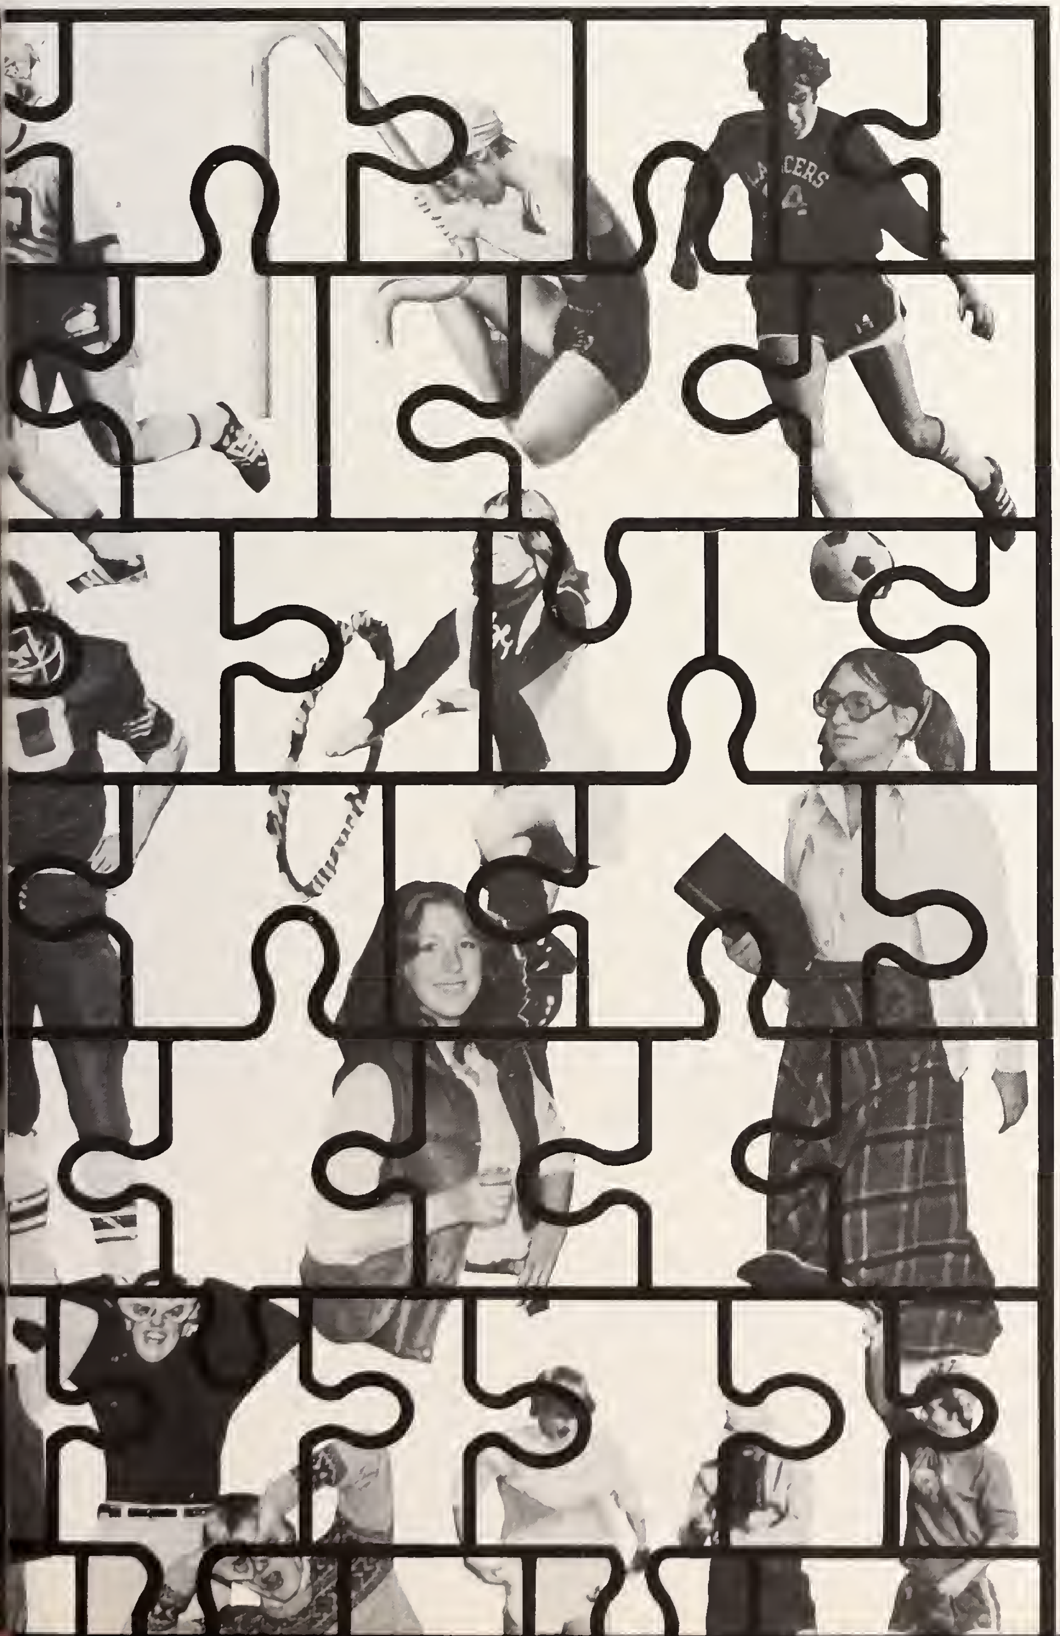
The clubs and organizations at L.H.S. offer the final linking pieces that complete our school puzzle. Each activity is a single piece that finds its place in one of the remaining scattered vacancies. Service organizations, ranging from the Key Club to the audio-visual aides, link socially conscious students with the school and town administrations, maintenance workers within the school, and community organizations which share similar goals. Academically oriented clubs, such as language clubs, math team, and "As Schools Match Wits", link students' leisure time with subjects relevant to their school work. Similarly, organizations through which students participate in the Arts introduce their members to potential areas of further study. Clubs that center around games and intramural sports serve as intermediate athletic activities for students who either wish to avoid the competitiveness of varsity sports or need to get in shape for an upcoming varsity season. Finally, the literary organizations, Jet Jotter, Outlet, and Masacksic, fill in the remaining links by gathering issues and subjects of the school and bringing them to the attention of the entire L.H.S. community.



All organizations of the school, no matter what their nature, serve the common purpose of getting students involved with L.H.S. and its teachers. They create links between faculty and students by creating the relationship of advisor to club member. Students get to know their teachers outside of the classroom. They become aquainted with their teachers' interests, hobbies, and talents, and thus begin to understand them as people and as individuals. Communication channels open up when a teacher and his student can speak on a person-to-person level. Problems are solved and tasks are accomplished through the resulting cooperation. The clubs are also vital to the school itself, some by performing in-school services and some by bringing prestige to L.H.S. through performances and productions. Either way, the clubs contribute to the school's standing and progress by being functioning congregations of concerned and dedicated students.

The motto of the French Club, according to advisor Mr. Whittaker, was, "Let's enjoy French outside of the classroom." This year's members enjoyed themselves while learning about the culture, especially in the fields of food and music. The club was unique in that it operated without officers, relying soley on the enthusiasm and spirit of its members. Main activities of the club centered around their food festivals, which were opened to all French students.

Longmeadow's Latin Club had an interesting year, which was highlighted by "Classics Day" at U.Mass held on March 20th. The members of the club participated in seminars on Roman civilization, mythology, and the Latin language, in which they viewed two Latin films. The club encouraged much academic progress for its members by attracting their interest to the study of the classics.

"I'm Getting Rid Of My 'Weird' Little Customs"

"When I'm writing this I've been about four months here in the U.S.A. During this time I had many new experiences that changed the picture I had before about what it would be. I think the cultures in Western Europe and here are very close together, that they developed and are still developing together. Finnish youth have mostly the same idols and their attitude toward the life and future is about the same. We listen to the same music and have the same movies, literature and some T.V. programs. However, there are some differences in customs and living, too. And there are many little, surprising things that are different. Like on my first school-day here I carried a school bag to all my classes. Everybody in Finland does that, but here many students started asking me about that bag, and why I had it. Today I carry my books in my hands like we all do. I'm getting rid of my "weird" little customs quickly. Of course, there are bigger and more important differences, too. The society is somewhat different and also family relationships. I find it very interesting to find these differences and to try to find out why they exist."

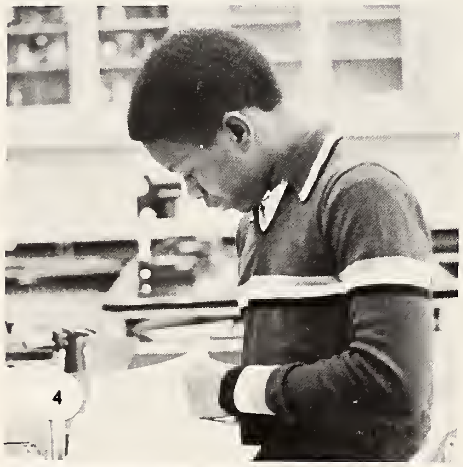
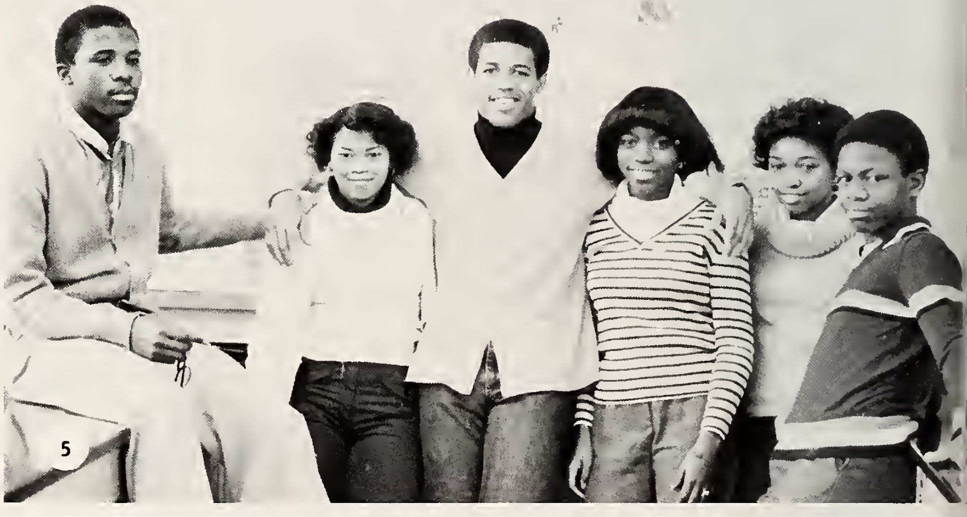
"Out-Of-Towners Experience Longmeadow High"





This year's ABC, under the supervision of Mrs. Sarno, was once again productive with many different activities. ABC is a national organization designed to help students from disadvantaged urban areas get a better high school education. The eight members of the group are very close knit and always are ready to help each other with academic and social problems. The ABC students frequently involve themselves in athletic and social events both in and out of school. Some of the activities that the group took part in were the faculty-ABC basketball game, a tag sale, and a Soul Food Dinner, all of which help to fund the group. Other contributions made to keep the group active come from the townspeople of Longmeadow.

The American Field Service Club is an organization which brings foreign students into the high school to experience the American culture. The club advisors, Mr. McKenna and Ms. Finn-Pierce, help to organize and encourage the club's activities along with President M. Chase, Vice-President K. Bisikirski, Secretary K. Ilgovsky, and Treasurer G. Moomjian.

Throughout the year, A.F.S. club members and area foreign students unite to engage in fun-filled "weekends," dances, and the annual "International Dinner." "Weekends" are probably the most enjoyable and memorable A.F.S. activities during which club members host foreign students from various schools in the region. These regional events are both fun and educational, as they allow Longmeadow students to talk with the foreign students about the cultures of their different countries.

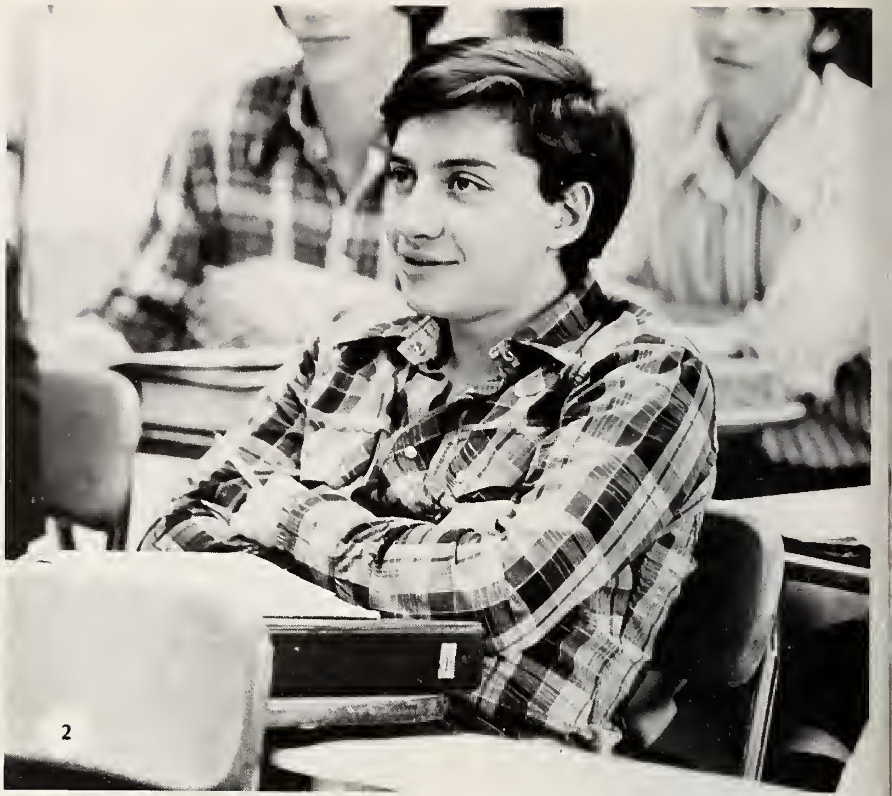
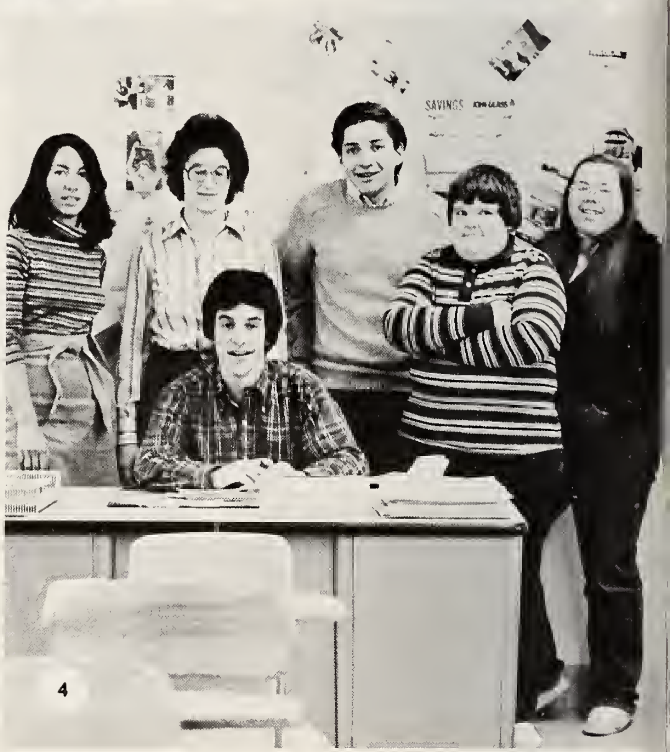
"But, How Can You Beat A Prophet?"





How can you beat a prophet? This question beset the Longmeadow High School As Schools Match Wits Team. After beating the Holyoke High Team, looking for their 2nd win in a row, Longmeadow came up against Northfield-Mt. Herman, a team complete with a self-proclaimed, aspiring prophet! Unfortunately, they lost to that propheticly, blessed team, ending their stint on television. Our team was led by Sara Siff ('79), and Kathy Shine ('79), with able help from seniors Alex Savich and Jon Romer. Alternates on Mrs. Rahkonen's team were Jeff Jones ('80) and David Freedman ('82).

After three great years, the Longmeadow High School Math Team has not weakened in quality. After the first two meets they were firmly in third place, just a few points away from second place out of eighteen schools. The Math Team, advised by Dr. Gorfin, was led by seniors Clark Santos, Dave Glaser, and Michael Feinstein as well as junior Linda Shear and Sophomores Greg Lowell and Donna Beaton. Alternates were Andrew Gotlib, Cindy Ransom, and Chris Fraser.

As the year progresses the team members always improve with experience. Therefore, there is a very good chance of the team competing, as they have in the past, in the state and New England Finals.

National Honor Society is comprised of about 100 members, each of whom achieved a record of grades that meets a set standard. The most important function of National Honor Society is its tutoring program. Members of N.H.S. tutor students in the reading room in all subjects. The program was more organized than in previous years, and many students benefited from the relaxed atmosphere and new outlook that comes from learning outside of the classroom. National Honor Society also helped out in the Lancer Bookstore and organized the bake sale at Back-to-School Night and the annual Ping Pong Tournament. Members of N.H.S. enjoyed two Induction Teas in the fall and spring. An Alumni Tea was also held in December where N.H.S. alumni from the class of 1977 and 1978 were invited back to discuss their colleges. President Alex Savich, Vice President Lauren Schwartz, Secretaries Terry Little and Diane Romell, Treasurer Alice Simon, and Tutor Coordinators Debbie Schnitzer and Pam Rubin, as well as Advisors Mrs. Dudley and Mrs. Dolgin, have made this year's N.H.S. one of the most successful ever.

Masacksic: a yearbook created by forty-five selfless staff members who have united to piece together the multi-facets of the school year into one unified story of L.H.S. This year, after a shaky start, the editors and staff strove ceaslessly to meet each deadline and to produce the best yearbook ever.

Taking over as Editors-in Chief in October, Alice Simon and Beth Tedeshi, together with Masacksic advisor Mel Grant, launched a new concept in yearbook design and construction. They prompted many new ideas, such as a staff-designed cover, additional color pages, and divider pages evolving to represent the theme.

Co-Editor Beth Tedeschi feels that the yearbook is very significant, as it provides a souvenir of all the people and activities of the school. For Beth, the time and dedication required of a yearbook staff member pays off when the yearbook is completed and printed. Then, one can flip through the pages and say, "Oh, I did that!" Co-Editor Alice Simon adds that it is difficult for a non-staff member to appreciate the amount of work that goes into yearbook construciton. It is all worthwhile, how-

"Were it left to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newpapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter." This quote by Thomas Jefferson voices the intent of the L.H.S. newspaper and the cause towards which fifty staff members diligently work.

This year's superior Jet Jotter undoubtedly marked a year of change The distinct format, newsprint, and tabloid front page are just a few examples of the revised methods adding to the quality of the newspaper. The most significant breakthrough was in the newspaper's widely expanded news scope; school, regional, national, and international news were added as regular features. This year's Jet Jotter also contained a multitude of stories relevant to student issues such as teen sexuality, juvenile delinquency, and cheating.

Managing Editor Linda Schupack and Faculty Advisor Mr. Fitzgerald channel the energies of the staff towards producing each succeeding issue with better quality. Editors are constantly involved in planning issues, assigning stories, designing layouts, and revising copy, and each staff member is subject to a period of intense pressure as deadlines near. Temporary relief comes with the finished issue, but the cycle soon begins again.

The superior quality of the newspaper was recognized in the Holyoke Community College Journalism Competition in November when it was rated "outstanding." Longmeadow's Key Club is an outstanding organization which has had a very exciting and rewarding year. The members, led by President Larry Eagan, Vice Presidents Jon Goldsmith and Mike Hurwitz, Secretary Steve Warshaw, Treasurer Rob Leary, and advisor Mr. Climo, have successfully completed many fine projects. Among them were: three walkathons, working in the March of Dimes' Haunted House, visiting Shriner's Hospital, purchasing a vacuum for courtyard cleaning, collecting canned food and toys for the needy, running concesssions at sports events, and wheeling elderly people around the Big E. Further highlights of the year include a Variety Show, a semi-formal, a banquet honoring Roger LeBlanc, Key Club vs. Kiwanis Volleyball games, and attending conventions.

This year's club has completed more projects than in past years. The group, as a whole, gets along very well, and this cooperation is necessary to fulfill the Key Club International Theme, "Respond to Society's Needs." By continuing to serve the community and the needy, our Key Club stands a strong chance of winning the achievement award for the best Key Club in the area.

This year's Keyette Club was a very successful one. There to lead the ninety members were President Linda Doherty, Vice President Sarah Woods, Executive Vice President Sherry Kajdan, Secretary Laura Poppo, and Treasurer Ann Genden. The girls in Keyettes aimed to be a service to the community, and their projects reflect this goal. Major activities included charity fund raisers, dances, bake sales, school teas, and visiting Shriners Hospital, nursing homes, and Willy Ross School for the Deaf. The principle community projects were organizing voting registration, working at the Blood Bank, and hostessing several community events. The Keyettes were officially honored at the Kiwonis Club luncheon for their outstanding work at the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon.

The Keyettes set a goal for themselves this year by choosing a national project: to raise money for the mentally retarded. Their advisor, Cindy Rahkonen, feels that this year's club was "excellent." The girls were self-reliant, and their leadership qualities were apparent in all respects.

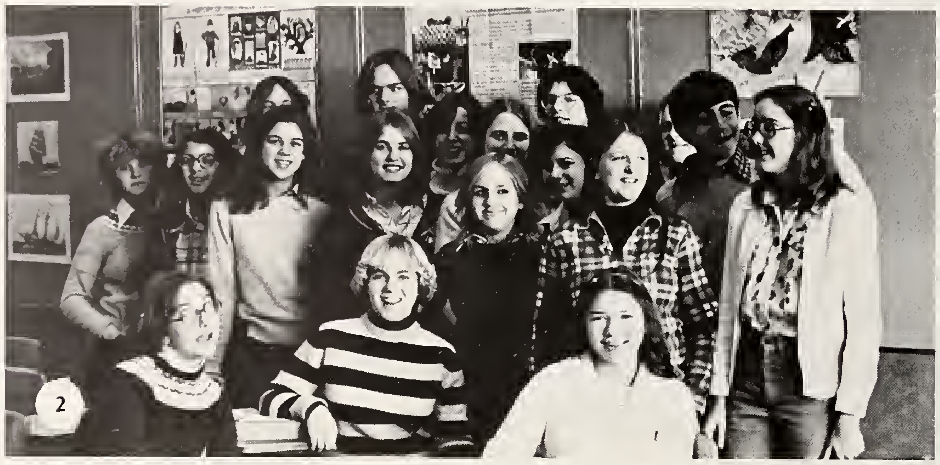
"A Zany-Zoo Turning Into A Dramatic Production"



The forty aspiring actors and actresses of the Drama Club took part in several productions during the past year, including "You Can't Stand a Ghost of a Chance," written by Drama Club member Scott Grasso. The club also took a trip to New York, participated in the Mass. Drama Guild Festival, and had a room at the March of Dimes' Haunted House.

Like all clubs, the Drama Club set certain goals for itself. They felt that these goals, such as growth of acting skills and theatrical talents, were acheived by most members. The participants' devotion to Dramatic Arts and cooperation with each other also helped to make this group successful.

"A Unique And Imaginative Work Of Art"

Once again this year, Outlet Club is busy working to publish their annual literary, photographic, and artistic magazine. The club advisor, Linda McShane, voices her hope "to make Outlet a better known and more comprehensive magazine." The magazine's twenty-five members are under the able supervision of Heidi Raker and Ellena Beauchamp; the visual editors are Joel Pellitier and Amy Cox. During this year, the staff attended workshops at A.I.C., in Springfield, to add new dimensions to the club and the magazine. Concrete preparations for the '79 issue began in December, and the magazine was published in mid-May.

Outlet, unlike any other school publication, is under no regulations as to what it must include. The decision on its contents is left completely up to the creators, which makes each issue of Outlet a unique and imaginative work of art.

The recent rise of the disco fad created a new mood that was reflected by this year's formation of the first dance club at L.H.S.

President Mark D'Angelo, Vice President Monica Paige, Secretary Karen Campbell, and Faculty Advisor Miss Feeney organized the club which met on Tuesday afternoons.

The club members were enthusiastic about learning and putting together new dances. They often taught each other new dances that they picked up on their own. The main activity of the club was a combination disco dance-fashion show. The club also engaged itself in fund-raisers for their trip to Broadway to observe professional choreography.

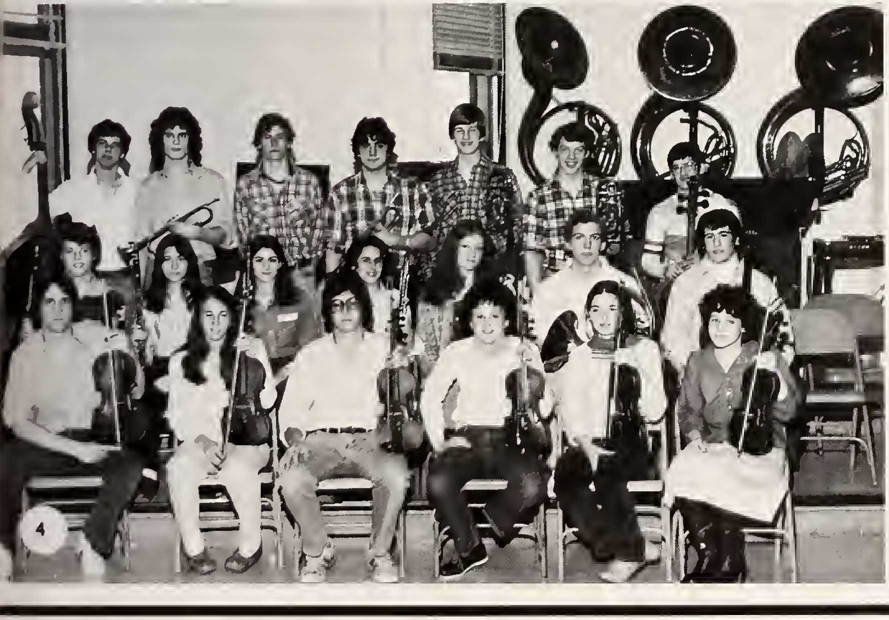
"Musical Talent Brought Together In Harmony"



Under the direction and leadership of Mr. Burkle, the orchestra once again had a successful year which included four concerts and two "pop" performances. The group participated in an exchange concert with Carlyle/Concord High School which was an enjoyable experience for all. This year, orchestra tried to reverse the trend in town of diminishing string players. As a result, there was a smaller orchestra for both the town and the district. Yet, Orchestra was successful because of the students' spirited playing and fierce determination on the part of Mr. Burkle.

Thanks to the conducting of rookie teacher Mr. Mucci and the talents of 56 musicians, the Longmeadow High School Band formed a great group.

The band displayed their talent and organization at the annual Pops Concert and Spring Concert. As the year's fund raising event, the group held a fruit sale.

Mr. Mucci feels strongly that band should be considered a class, not a club; he conducted the group in this perspective. The band's diligent practices prepared them for competition against other bands in Massachusetts. This competition enabled them to meet new people and learn from other musical groups, as well as to match talents against them. Exceptional members of the band went on to District Competition to perform in individual trials.

Mr. Mucci feels that there is always room for improvement, and the cooperation and dedication on the part of the band members were the key factors in producing a progressive and successful year.

The Chorus for the 79-79 school year was a tremendous success. Together, Mr. Mucci and Mr. Thomsen constructed a chorus of 81 students, 57 girls and 24 boys, a total never before attained in a Longmeadow Concert Chorus.

The group performed in a number of concerts and competitions since the beginning of the year. Together they participated in the annual Fall and Winter Concerts, and the girls competed against college groups at Mt. Holyoke College. Later in the year they participated in the Pops Concert and an exchange trip with another choir.

Michael Mucci, a co-advisor of the chorus states: “The attitudes of all concerned are very good. A deep musical integrity has grown since the beginning of the year.” There is always room for improvement in the group, and musical skills have developed considerably since the beginning of the year. The group is singing more complicated songs, and better musical skills have developed. Mr. Mucci says, “It is very tight group, extremely co-operative, and great to work with. I love teaching the group!”

Water Polo can be a great sport when played correctly, and the 20 members of the L.H.S. Water Polo team seem to know what they are doing. The club's advisor, Mark Michelson, had members practice two hours each afternoon in the fall since most team members had never played before. Since most high schools do not play water polo, scheduling was difficult. Games were played against UMass, URI, Westfield State, Deerfield, Northfield-Mount Herman, Phillips Exeter and Loomis Chaffe. Considering the competition, they compiled an encouraging 5-8 record. Captains Mark McDermatt and Peter Krucznski felt that the team had great spirit, and most members were very cooperative which insured a good time for all. Capping off the season was a third place finish in the Prep School Water Polo Tournament. Hopefully, more people will join the club next year to insure more victories in the future.

"Leaders Ease The Load On Coaches"

Leaders Club is an organization comprised of about 55 students, 25 girls and 30 boys, who assist in gym classes, referee games, and administer skill tests. They also prove useful in keeping classes in order. People who wish to become members of Leaders Club must be willing to sacrifice study halls in order to attend the gym classes that they will lead. The final decision, as to who makes the club, depends on the conscientiousness and availability of the applicant. Certainly, this club serves an important function at L.H.S. by allowing gym teachers to really teach instead of spending all of their time on refereeing and disciplining.

One segment of L.H.S. which strives to increase student appreciation of nature is the Outing Club. This year's advisors, Mr. Hirsh and Mr. Rediker, led the group on several enjoyable overnights, daytime hikes and picnics. A slide show on canoeing and a demonstration of ski waxing were also conducted by the club.

Unfortunately, the club lacked consistent student interest and enthusiasm which, according to Mr. Hirsh, was dampened by terrible weather conditions. However, Outing Club members did display much cooperation; the overnights and other outings were successful in building friendships as well as appreciation for the outdoors.

In the future, the Outing Club advisors hope that the club will eventually become a major activity so that everyone can experience the joys of hiking; non-competitiveness, good health, and cooperation between man and nature.

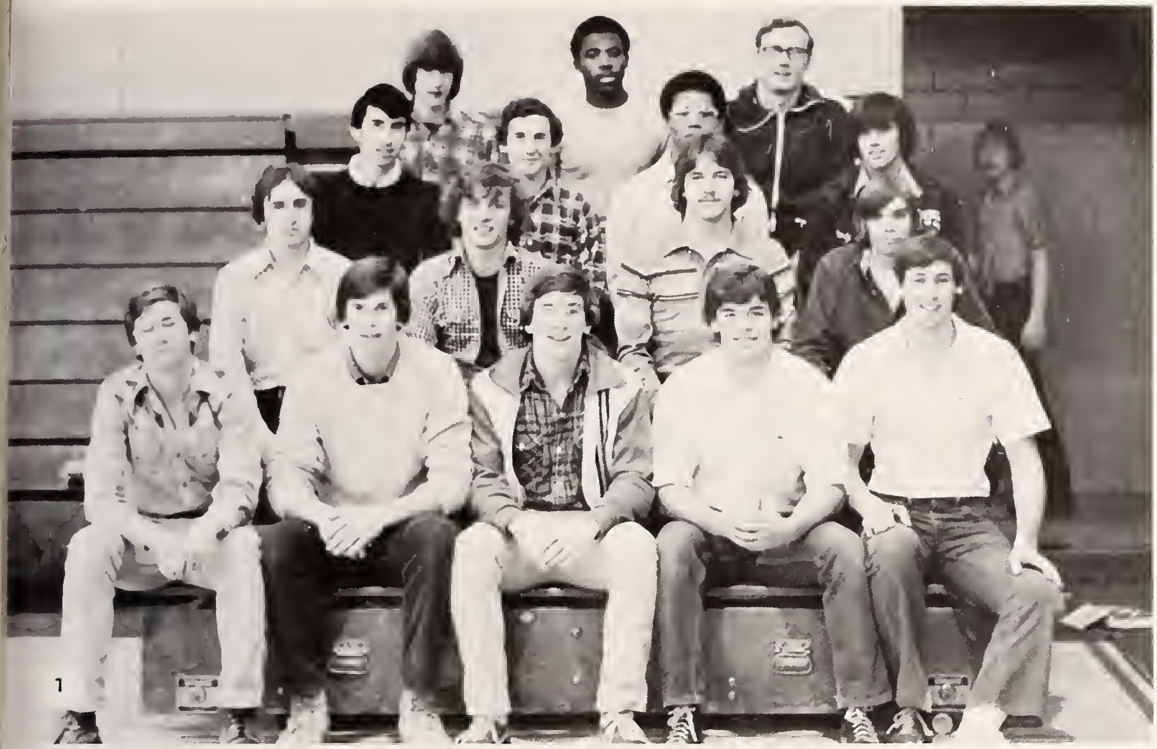
“Infant Club Gains Fame.”



Although it was intended to be merely a training session for the spring team, this year's indoor track club blossomed into a full-fledged, and successful, competition sport. Guided by Coach Williams, the club participated in meets at the U. Mass. indoor track, competing with teams from all over the Western Mass. area. At the end of the season, the club boasted first place in the Western Mass. competition and three individual Western Mass. champions.

S. Tripp won the 50 yard dash, A. Maslow won the 600 yard run, and S. Sears won the 2 mile run, breaking the Western Mass. record. Other members who proved vital to the club's efforts included A. Sears, A. Lamontagne, and G. Mader. This year was the second of the club's existence, but it was the first that they were really organized. The astounding results of this infant club bring to our attention the endless sources of student talent that can grow under good leadership and organization.

Riot? Insurrection? Fire drill? Demolition derby in the rear teachers parking lot? Lady Godiva trotting around the cinder track? The Charge of the Light Brigade? No, none of these.

It's Tuesday afternoons in the winter — 2:15 to be precise, and get out of the way because here they come!

Ski clubbers! Over a nundred of them — students and teachers — exploding out of the back door of the high school — schussing to Mt. Tom for another day of fun and falls on that beautiful white stuff — like cotton candy — only not so soft.

Red cheeks and running noses — three hours of crisp air and nightshine — then back to the busses, exhausted, warm sleepy-eyed, hungry! And home.

Under the watchful eyes of ski club advisor Mr. Mel Grant and chaperones Mrs. Jane Murphy, Miss Jane Angis, Mr. Pete Thompson, Mr. Bob Potvin, Mr. Al Jangl, and Mr. Ray McKenna, the club members "hot-dogged" Mt. Tom on five different occassions this past winter.

That is, most of them did; but some like Mrs. Murphy, Miss Angis, Mr. Potvin, and Mr. McKenna were doing something more like the "Bunny Hop."

Will a dynasty such as "The Family" ever again grace the ranks of the Intramural Basketball Association's hallowed halls? With the likes of such superstars as Fod, Nuggets, Vitz, Chuck, Shot, Moses, Oz, Old Man, the illustrious Coach Crane, and our own Bear Trainer, Longmeadow High winessed the best hoop exhibition since the days of George Mikan. Despite great turmoil and team dissension, "The Family" remained undefeated. Such teams as "The Boatniks", "The Jokers", and "The Squad" offered a fair challenge, but all were humiliated by the infamous "Family". This elite organization wishes to issue a challenge to all future I.B.A. champs, if they dare.

The audio-visual aides served two very important functions, the primary one being assisting teachers with video taping and video presentations. The thirteen members of the club this year, as in the past, handled this responsibility conscientiously and efficiently. In addition to this job, the club produced a monthly news-comedy show called "Fifty-four Minutes Of Longmeadow High School." The show was very successful and provided study hall entertainment in the cafeteria. Advisors Merril Olchich, Chris Loughman, and Flo Healy made good use of these ambitions and talented aides to benefit both the high school's faculty and student body.

The hard work of Chairpeople John Wass, Martha Prybylo, Jeff Queen, Alice Sullivan, and Nancy Hesen helped to make Homecoming '78 a great success. Early in the November morning, L.H.S. students lined the streets of Longmeadow to witness the annual parade in which the whole school took part. The event was designed to generate spirit for the approaching rivalry football game against East Longmeadow. The parade of floats followed a course from the L.H.S. parking lot through the streets of the town, ending back at the school.

The floats were built around the central theme of "Memories of Our Childhood," as each class competed to create the best float. The Over Sixty's Club judged at the event and awarded the first prize to the Seniors, who created a giant-sized Monopoly board. Other floats included the Junior float of a carousel, which featured famous animated characters, the Sophomore float of a cookie jar, and the Freshmen float of a little girl's bedroom. Other participants in the parade included the cheerleaders, the majorettes, the band, and an additional hayride float, on which the Seniors rode. The Freshmen also stood out in the homecoming festivities by winning the spirit link competition.

Many months of this past year were spent by the Masacksic staff in the creative efforts necessary to produce this yearbook. We tried to capture every facet of the high school. If any club or activity is not accounted for, it is either because they did not wish to be represented, or they did not take the time to be photographed. We hope that we have successfully integrated the many functions of L.H.S. into our theme, and that this yearbook will serve you as an imperishable souvenir of the 1979 high school year.

We wish to extend our thanks to the following:

Mr. Don Lendry, our American Yearbook Company representative.
